

Overview

C.M. Capital Corporation (“CMC”) is a Silicon Valley-based private investment management and advisory services company located in Palo Alto, California. Originally founded in 1969 as a real estate investment company, CMC continues to hold prime developed and undeveloped real estates in the San Francisco Bay Area. CMC has evolved over the past few decades and now it also provides substantive advisory and management services covering a wide range of financial asset classes, including real estate.

CMC was one of the early pioneers of venture capital investing and still retains an active interest in that asset class today. Besides overseeing substantial private equity investments, CMC provides investment advice on a portfolio consisting of fixed income securities, public equities and hedge funds, as well as direct and indirect real estate investments. In addition to investing for its own account, CMC provides investment management and advisory services for various Cha Group affiliates.
